Arizona home inspectors must be licensed by Jan. 1, 2003

Home inspectors in Arizona will be required to be licensed by the state beginning January 1, 2003, as a result of legislation signed by Governor Jane Dee Hull. To become licensed, a person will have to attend a course of prelicensure education at an approved school, participate in a "home inspector-in-training program," and pass a state examination.

The education and training program requirements will not apply to home inspectors who have performed at least 250 home inspections for compensation by January 1, 2003, and who can produce five examples of home inspection reports they have prepared for examination by the state.

Home inspectors will be licensed by the State Board of Technical Registration. The Board will appoint a Home Inspector Rules and Standards Committee which will have six months in which to draft and recommend the following:

- ▶ Criteria for home inspector certification.
- ▶ Standards for home inspection reports.
- ▶ Standards for written examinations.
- ▶ Standards for educational programs including a course of study, home inspector-in-training programs and continuing education.
- ▶ Rules defining conduct.

Committee members will include three home inspectors selected from a

'Acting in concert' amendment kills Department's Omnibus Bill

The Department's efforts to change Arizona's real estate statutes have been partially scuttled for the third year in a row by the introduction of an amendment which would have gutted the Department's ability to pursue illegal subdividers.

Senate Bill 1430, the "Real Estate Omnibus Bill," was allowed to die after efforts to remove a House amendment were unsuccessful.

Presently, A.R.S. § 32-2101 defines "acting in concert" to create an illegal subdivision as "evidence to pursue a concerted plan." As amended, the bill would have required the Department to prove that owners of unsubdivided land had entered into an "agreement" to violate subdivision statutes. "The Department would have been required to prove what was going on in the owners' minds," Real Estate Commissioner Jerry Holt said.

In the closing days of the legislative session, the more important provisions of the failed Senate bill were added to House Bill 2117 by Senator Tom Freestone. The bill was signed by Governor Hull and will become law on July 19.

As amended, the legislation makes the following changes to real estate statutes:

- A.R.S. § 32-2104 is amended to increase the number of members of the Arizona Real Estate Advisory Board from seven to nine. Two of the nine members must have been engaged in residential real estate brokerage for the five years preceding their appointment. Not more than five members of the board may reside in the same county.
- A.R.S. § 32-2136 is amended to change the name of the Department's Broker Audit Clinic to Broker Management Clinic. Previously, the statute required the Department to conduct the clinics. Now, instructors from approved real estate schools may conduct the clinics after Department approval. The Department will also determine the course content.

All designated real estate brokers will now be required to attend a Broker Management Clinic once during every two-year licensing period after initial attendance rather than once every four years.

- A.R.S. § 32-2151.02 is amended to change the term "sale or rental listing agreement" to "employment agreement," defined as "a written agreement by which a real estate broker is entitled to compensation for services rendered..." The agreement must include the terms of broker compensation. A real estate employment agreement is not required for a licensee to represent a party in a transaction.

- A.R.S. § 32-2153 is amended to provide the Department with statutory authority to issue a "provisional license," a license which allows a licensee to practice as a salesperson or broker subject to either a consent order or the Commissioner's terms, conditions and restrictions. Issuance of a provisional license is an alternative to license denial, revocation or suspension.

The Governor also signed House Bill 2069 which paves the way for state agencies to accept electronic signatures on documents transmitted by e-mail or from a Web site. The Department is exploring ways in which application forms which require a signature could be submitted electronically.

Avoiding liability for negligent home inspections

by K. Michelle Lind, Esq

As a general rule, when a broker recommends a competent person to do work for a client and exercises no supervision or control over the work, the broker is not liable for negligence of the person performing the work.

This general rule applies to the recommendation of any home to a buyer. As long as the recommended inspector is competent, the broker should have no liability to the buyer, even if the inspector negligently fails to discover a defect that results in the buyer incurring unanticipated repair expenses.

However, if a broker fails to exercise reasonable care in recommending a competent inspector, a broker may be held liable for any resulting damages. Although the Arizona courts have yet to specifically address this issue, support for such a negligent referral cause of action can be found in the case law of many states.

However, to hold a broker liable for negligent referral, there must be evidence that the broker had some knowledge that the inspector was incompetent or lacked skill. In other words, to prevail in a lawsuit, a buyer must prove that the broker knew the recommended home inspector did not have the requisite skill to competently perform the inspection.

Similarly, a broker may be subject to liability for negligently hiring a home inspector. In Thomson v. McGinnis, 465 S.E. 2d 922 (W.Va. 1995), a West Virginia court found that a real estate broker may be liable to a buyer for negligent selection and retention of an inspector. In this case, the broker hired an inspector to inspect the heating system of a house. Unfortunately, the inspector hired by the broker was not certified to work on heating systems.

The "inspection" consisted only of listening to the furnace while it was running, after which the inspector signed a certification stating the furnace functioned properly. Having received the certification, the buyer purchased the home.

After close of escrow, the buyer discovered that the furnace did not function properly. A certified technician informed the buyer that the furnace had many problems and was unsafe to operate. The buyer then sued the inspector and the broker who had hired the inspector.

The broker argued that she could not be held liable for the actions of the inspector. However, the court stated that the broker may have been negligent in hiring the inspector, who was not certified to inspect heating equipment. The court stated:

"While a real estate broker bears no responsibility to conduct an independent investigation of a latent defect, when such broker volunteers to secure an inspection of the premises, or some part thereof, by retaining on behalf of the buyer a third party to conduct the inspection, then that real estate broker may be held liable to the buyer for civil damages if the broker in retaining said third party is negligent in the selection and retention of the third party and if such negligence proximately causes harm to the buyer."

An Ohio court came to a similar conclusion in Lucore v. AID Pest Con- trol, 1998 Ohio App. LEXIS 5710. In this case, the court noted that the broker routinely selected termite inspectors for his clients.

However, the broker did not investigate the qualifications of the inspectors or request proof of insurance from them. At times, the broker would randomly select an inspector from the yellow pages, or use an inspector simply because the broker had been given the inspector's business card. Thus, the court found that the broker could be held liable for the negligent selection and retention of the termite inspector.

The importance of obtaining a thorough home inspection before a buyer purchases a home cannot be over-emphasized. However, a broker should not incur unnecessary liability for a negligent inspection. Therefore, a broker should give the buyer the names of three qualified home inspectors. Additionally, the broker should insist that the buyer determine which inspector should be hired.

A broker should not undertake to directly hire any inspector on the buyer's behalf. A broker should also encourage the buyer to inquire as to the qualifications of the home inspector and to determine whether the home inspector has errors and omissions liability insurance coverage.

Legislation

Senate Bill 1164, which has been signed by the Governor, adds A.R.S. § 32-2107.01 and requires the Commissioner to record a disclaimer of unlawful restrictions in every Arizona county. The statute states, "The commissioner shall execute and record a document in the office of the county recorder in each county in this state that disclaims the validity and enforceability of certain restrictions and covenants. The document shall contain a disclaimer in substantially the following form:

"It is the law of this state that any covenants or restrictions that are based on race, religion, color, handicap status or national origin are invalid and unenforceable. If the invalid covenant or restriction is contained in a document that is recorded in this county, it is hereby declared void."

What's missing?

Among the provisions of the failed Senate bill not included in the amendments to House Bill 2117 are these:

- Applicants for an Arizona real estate salesperson's or broker's license who are licensed in another state may be exempt from taking the national portion of the Arizona real estate examination. An amendment to A.R.S. § 32-2124 would have required the applicant to have passed a national examination in another state within the preceding five years.

- Amendments to A.R.S. §§ 32-2184, 32-2195.10 and 32-2198.03 would have stiffened the language prohibiting changes in the plan under which a subdivision, unsubdivided land or a membership camping contract is offered for sale without notifying the Commissioner.

News From The Commissioner

We have received an increasing number of complaints from brokers about other brokers who abbreviate the name of their brokerage in classified advertising to the point where a reasonable person would not be able to determine the actual name of the company. As a real estate professional, you would probably know that WUSA stands for West USA, but we don't think the average citizen would.

Commissioner's Rule R4-28-502 states that "all advertising shall include either the name in which the employing broker's license is held or the fictitious name contained on the license certificate."

While we understand the need to abbreviate words in classified ads to save money, we must protect the public and answer the complaints we are receiving about cryptic abbreviations.

Spell out the name of your company in your classified ads; no abbreviations, please.

False renewal applications can mean trouble

Random audits of renewal applications have disclosed that a disturbing number of licensees are falsifying the number of hours of continuing education they have completed when applying for license renewal. Some audits revealed that the licensee had not completed any of the 24 required hours. The usual excuse the licensee gives when found submitting such a false application is that the licensee "ran out of time" and "intended to complete the required continuing education hours as soon as possible" after renewing.

Filing a false application for license renewal is grounds for license revocation. Shortly after you submit your license renewal application, you may receive a phone call or letter asking you to fax copies of your continuing education certificates to our Education and Licensing Division. Do not be caught falsifying your renewal application. Prosecution for this offense will not be a pretty sight!

The new renewal application, Form LI-243 which has been in use since March, now requires a licensee to list each course category, course number, number of credit hours, the name of the school and the date the course was taken.

When good legislation goes bad

Proponents of the Ned Warren School of Subdivision once again tried to gut the Department's subdivision statutes with an amendment to Senate Bill 1430, the Department's 2000 "Real Estate Omnibus Bill." The amendment would have required the Department to prove in an illegal subdivision investigation that two or more people had "agreed" to act in concert to violate the statutes. We assume that such an agreement would have to be in writing, and that the violators would have carefully kept a copy of the agreement where Department investigators could find it. Faced with this amendment, we decided to ask Senator Tom Freestone, who introduced the bill, to scuttle it.

Fortunately, with the cooperation of the Real Estate Educators Association, we were able to salvage key provisions of the Omnibus Bill as an amendment to House Bill 2117. You can read about the effects of this bill, which was signed by the Governor, in the story on page 1.

One of the provisions privatizes the Broker Audit Clinic. Beginning July 19 when new legislation becomes effective, the new course will be called the "Broker Management Clinic" and will be expanded to include the subjects of advertising and promotions, and material disclosure. Designated brokers will be required to attend the course at their favorite real estate school every two years within the term of their license.

ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIONS

REVOCATIONS

99A-073

Teresa M. Doyon, aka Teresa M. Crow, aka Teresa Maria Greiger
Tucson

DATE OF ORDER: December 9, 1999

FINDINGS OF FACT: In her application for an original cemetery salesperson's license, Respondent failed to disclose a 1989 conviction for DUI and Disorderly Conduct/Domestic Violence in Wichita, Kansas City Court, and a 1997 conviction in Tucson for Disorderly Conduct/Domestic Violence.

VIOLATIONS: Respondent obtained a cemetery salesperson's license by filing an application that was false or misleading, in violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(1). Her actions constitute substantial misrepresentation in violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(3). Her conduct establishes that she is not a person of honesty, truthfulness and good character within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(7).

DISPOSITION: Respondent's license is revoked.

99A-H1981

George H. Wardner
Prescott

DATE OF ORDER: January 20, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: Wardner was a licensed real estate broker in California since 1986. In 1994, he moved to Arizona and wanted to make his California license inactive. He refused to submit a required form to the California Department of Real Estate (CDRE) because, he stated, he saw no reason for it.

In May 1995, CDRE issued an Accusation against Wardner and his California business, alleging that he had violated California law by unlawfully collecting advance fees that were not placed in a trust account or accounted for. In January 1996, CDRE revoked Wardner's license. Wardner did not appear at the hearing.

Sometime in early July 1996, Wardner learned his license had been revoked (he had not learned of it earlier because he had not informed CDRE of a change of address) and wrote CDRE for clarification. CDRE informed Wardner that he could seek reinstatement after one year.

Meanwhile, Wardner had applied for and received an Arizona real estate broker's license in January 1995. He was due to renew in January 1997 and filed a renewal application in December 1996. He did not disclose that his California real estate license had been revoked.

In late 1997, the Department discovered Wardner's California revocation. In January 1998, the Department requested that Wardner explain the circumstances behind his omission of the California revocation. Wardner responded that he "learned just recently" of the revocation and explained that he believed he had taken the required steps to change his address with CDRE. Not satisfied with Wardner's response, the Department brought this disciplinary action.

In January 1999, Wardner filed an application for renewal of his Arizona real estate license. Also in January 1999, CDRE denied Wardner's petition for reinstatement of his California license.

Wardner testified at the Department's Administrative Hearing in this matter in August 1999. He gave false testimony in two instances. First, he testified that he learned of the California revocation in 1997. The letter he sent to CDRE in July 1996, however, shows that he new of the revocation in late June or early July 1996. Second, Wardner testified that he never received a copy of the California decision revoking his license. Credible evidence shows that he received a copy of the California decision with CDRE's July 23, 1996 letter.

Wardner made false written statements to the Department in two instances. First, in December 1996 in his renewal application, he denied ever having a license revoked when he was fully aware of the California revocation. Second, in January 1998 in his notarized statement to the Department, he stated he had "just recently" learned of the revocation, when in fact he had known of the revocation since July 1996. VIOLATIONS: Wardner procured a license by filing a renewal application that was false and misleading, in violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(1). He made substantial misrepresentations, in violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(3). He failed to exhibit honesty, truthfulness and good character, in violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(7). He failed to notify the Department within 10 days after learning of his revocation in violation of A.A.C. R4-28-301(C)(3), a violation of A.R.S. § 32-2153(A)(3). DISPOSITION: Wardner's real estate broker's license is revoked. He is to pay a civil penalty in the amount of $1,000.

LICENSE APPLICATIONS DENIED

99A-009

Robert K Irland
Scottsdale

DATE OF ORDER: June 1, 1999

FINDINGS OF FACT: In November 1998, Petitioner submitted an original application for a real estate salesperson's license in which he disclosed a 1995 conviction for Lewd Conduct and that 1998 charges were pending for Lewd Conduct and Indecent Exposure. He was convicted of these charges in December 1998.

Based on these facts, an Administrative Hearing was conducted, and the Administrative Law Judge recommended that the Department issue Petitioner a "provisional license," something not permitted by statute, with the condition that Petitioner be counseled weekly by a state certified psychologist for two years.

The Commissioner ordered denial of the license.

Petitioner appealed the Commissioner's decision in Maricopa County Superior Court. The Court affirmed the decision.

DISPOSITION: Petitioner's license application is denied.

99A-129

Danny J. McGinn
Phoenix

DATE OF ORDER: January 6, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In his July 1999 application for an original real estate salesperson's license Petitioner disclosed:

- a. A December 1993 arrest for assault and criminal damage (charges dismissed);
- b. An April 1994 arrest leading to conviction for assault/domestic violence;
- c. A December 1994 arrest leading to conviction for assault/domestic violence;
- d. An April 1997 arrest leading to conviction for assault/domestic violence;
- e. An April 1997 arrest for issuing a bad check (charges dismissed);
- f. A February 1998 arrest leading to conviction for DUI.

At the administrative hearing, Petitioner testified to a number of factors which led to his arrests and convictions, including a bad marriage and alcohol addiction. He testified that he has obtained a divorce, was granted sole custody of his children, and has undergone treatment for alcoholism. He testified that he is active in Alcoholics Anonymous and has not touched alcohol in more than 1-1/2 years.

In his Findings of Fact, the Administrative Law Judge stated that he found that Petitioner "appears to have set himself on a path which, if maintained, will lead (him) away from repeating the mistakes of his past." He added, however, "there simply has not been a sufficient lapse of time since Mr. McGinn's 1993-1998 arrests and convictions to affirmatively conclude that Mr. McGinn meets the necessary qualifications for a real estate salesperson's license."

DISPOSITION: Petitioner's application denied.

99A-123

Linda Rose
Green Valley

DATE OF ORDER: January 24, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In her August 1999 application for an original real estate salesperson's license, Petitioner disclosed a January 1999 conviction in Pennsylvania for assault and disorderly conduct, misdemeanors. After having been taken into custody by several police officers, placed in restraints and transported to a hospital, she bit the hand of one of the officers.

She was placed on probation which will terminate in late May, 2000.

It was demonstrated that the actions of Petitioner, a recovering alcoholic at the time, were probably the result of her drinking with friends at a social gathering following a prolonged period of sobriety.

In his recommendations to the Commissioner, the Administrative Law Judge wrote, "Because of the nature, gravity and time of Petitioner's criminal activity and conviction, it must be held that she has not sustained her burden of proving that she is presently entitled to (a) real estate salesperson's license..."

DISPOSITION: Application denied.

99A-126

Maria L. Galvan
Tucson

DATE OF ORDER: January 21, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In her application for an original real estate salesperson's license, Respondent disclosed that she had been convicted of shoplifting in 1994 and again in 1995.

The Department notified her it intended to deny her application, and she requested an Administrative Hearing. She failed to appear at the hearing.

DISPOSITION: Application denied.

99A-127

Irene C. Martin
Mesa

DATE OF ORDER: February 3, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In her August 1999 application for an original real estate salesperson's license, Petitioner disclosed two July 1995 convictions for the sale of drugs.

While on probation for the 1995 convictions, Petitioner tested positive for marijuana in two different urinalysis tests.

The Department denied her license application, and Petitioner requested an Administrative Hearing.

In his Conclusions of Law, the Administrative Law Judge wrote, "... a little more than a year has passed since she completed her probation, and about two years since she completed substance abuse counseling following a relapse. She was a user and seller of methamphetamines (user for three years and sale for at least one year prior to her arrest in September, 1994) and a user of marijuana (for over 20 years prior to her September 1994 arrest). One of her convictions was a felony for possession of dangerous drugs. During her probation, two urinalysis tests were positive for marijuana. It is premature to conclude with reasonable and fair certainty that Ms. Martin has fully overcome her problems and is ready and suited for a career in real estate."

DISPOSITION: Application denied.

99A-095

Mario A. Rana
Scottsdale

DATE OF ORDER: February 11, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In his May 1999 application for an original real estate salesperson's license, Petitioner disclosed a 1982 conviction for criminal possession of a loaded weapon, a 1991 felony conviction for conspiracy to transport marijuana, a 1991 DUI conviction, a 1995 conviction for harassment, and a 1998 conviction for disorderly conduct.

VIOLATIONS: Petitioner has been convicted of a felony or crime of moral turpitude within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(2). Petitioner has failed to demonstrate that he is a person of good character within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(7). Petitioner has violated the terms of a criminal order (failed to complete 75 hours of community service ordered by the Criminal Court of New York) within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(9).

DISPOSITION: Application denied.

99A-152

John R. Jenkins
Scottsdale

DATE OF ORDER: March 1, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: In his September 1999 application for an original real estate salesperson's license, he disclosed that in March 1995 he was charged with 12 counts of False Statement, a class 8 felony, one count Fraudulent Schemes and Practices, a class 5 felony, and one count Theft, a class 3 felony. In April, he was convicted of False Statement, a class 6 undesignated offense and was placed on supervised probation for three years. In April 1997, the Court discharged Petitioner from probation and designated the offense as a misdemeanor.

The charges and conviction stemmed from Petitioner claiming and receiving unemployment benefits while being employed.

VIOLATIONS: Petitioner has been convicted of a crime of moral turpitude within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(2). He has been found guilty of conduct which constitute dishonest dealings within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(2). His behavior shows he was not a person of honesty, truthfulness and good character within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(7). Petitioner failed to present any corroborating evidence showing that he has the required good character to hold a real estate salesperson's license. Petitioner's misdemeanor conviction involved dishonest dealings within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(B)(10).

DISPOSITION: Application denied.

99A-173*James A. Pallott*Glendale

DATE OF ORDER: February 29, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: Respondent was issued a real estate broker's license in February 1996. At all times material to this matter, Respondent was the designated broker for Lincoln Realty.

In February 1999, Respondent listed for sale a home owned by Lawrence and Barbara Berardi in Peoria. On April 1, Respondent prepared an offer for Nathaniel and Mercedes Tevens to purchase the home. This offer, which indicated that Respondent was acting exclusively as the seller's agent, showed $5,000 down as earnest money and the balance of the purchase price to be deposited as cash on or before close of escrow. The earnest money was to be deposited in an escrow account at a title company.

The offer, prepared for the buyer by Respondent, contained Respondent's signature acknowledging receipt of a $5,000 check for the earnest money deposit.

On April 1, Respondent also had the buyer and seller sign a dual representation agreement. The seller, who was relocating to Las Vegas, quickly purchased another home.

The buyer's check, post-dated April 14, was received and deposited in the escrow account on April 13. On April 23, the title company notified Respondent that the check had bounced. Respondent directed the title company to re-submit the check but did not mention the matter to the seller.

The title company representative asserts that on May 5 she notified Respondent that the check bounced a second time. Respondent denies this.

On May 26, the day scheduled for closing, the buyer, seller and Respondent conducted a walk-through of the home. Later that day, when signing documents at the title company, the seller learned there was no money in the escrow account and that the earnest money check had been returned by the bank.

When questioned by the seller about why he had not been informed of the status of the earnest money, Respondent assured him the buyer was financially able to purchase the property, however the buyer's funds were tied up in some high-yield investment accounts. Respondent requested, and the seller approved, a one-day extension for the buyer to close. On May 27, at Respondent's request, the seller approved another one-day extension and was advised by Respondent that the funds would be deposited no later than 1 p.m. on May 28.

The seller contacted the title company on the afternoon of May 28 and learned that no funds had been received. The seller canceled the escrow.

On August 31, Respondent prepared a second purchase offer for the home with the same parties, again as seller's agent exclusively. This second offer, accepted by the seller on August 31 or September 1, provided for the purchase price, $320,000, to be deposited with the title company in certified funds upon the opening of escrow. The transaction was scheduled to close on or before September 15. Escrow was opened, however no funds were given to Respondent or deposited with the escrow company. Escrow was canceled September 22.

Respondent did not inform the seller that the funds had not been deposited with the title company upon the seller's acceptance of the second offer.

The documentation Respondent prepared pertaining to this transaction and his conduct described herein provided conflicting, contradictory information concerning whether Respondent was acting as the seller's agent or in a dual agency capacity.

VIOLATIONS: Respondent did not take steps to protect and promote his client's interests and to act in the client's best interests, whether represent the seller only or acting as a dual agent. He failed to fulfill his fiduciary duty, within the meaning of A.A.C. R4-28-1101(A). Respondent failed to deal fairly with all parties to the transaction, in violation of A.A.C. R4-28-1101(B). Pursuant to A.R.S. § 32-2152(A), a broker must place funds entrusted to him in a neutral escrow account or in the broker's trust account. Respondent was to deposit the earnest money in the escrow account. When he learned the check had bounced, he did not notify seller of the fact. Respondent's conduct and actions constitute violations of provisions of Arizona Revised Statutes, Title 32, Chapter 20 and the Commissioner's Rules, within the meaning of A.R.S. § 32-2153(A)(3).

DISPOSITION: Respondent to pay a civil penalty in the amount of $2,000. Respondent shall take 12 hours of continuing education, in addition to hours required for license renewal, in the category of Commissioner's Standards and Broker Responsibilities.

To satisfy the financial assurance requirements of A.R.S. § 32-2181(A)(17) and A.R.S. § 32-2183(D), Fulton Homes agreed not to close escrow until all subdivision improvements had been completed. A site inspection on February 3, 2000 revealed that the improvements had not been completed. The completion date represented by Fulton Homes was December 31, 1999.

On February 16, 2000, Fulton Homes filed an application to amend the public report (Second Amendment) pursuant to A.R.S. § 32-2184.

Between January 1 and February 14, 2000, Fulton Homes closed escrow on eight lots.

Darlene Dewey

DATE OF ORDER: March 22, 2000

FINDINGS OF FACT: Respondent is licensed as a real estate salesperson. Her license expires May 31, 2001.

On August 12, 1997, Thomas Crandall listed a home for sale in Chandler for Craig Rosenbaum. The property was listed as a "lease-purchase possibility" with a selling price of $126,900.

On September 16, Respondent prepared a purchase contract and receipt for deposit and a lease for Patricia and Michael O'Toole, the buyers. The lease was for one year and the buyer's offer was for the listed selling price with a $3,699 down payment as a non-refundable earnest money deposit with an additional $1,311 earnest money payment due at move-in, and $5,000 more due on January 30, 1998.

Respondent gave the agreements to Crandall to present to the seller. The offer was accepted. Respondent filed to give disclosure to Crandall regarding the buyer's financial condition and prior bankruptcy.

On September 21, 1997, the buyers took possession of the property. Subsequently they did not pay rent as agreed. After several unsuccessful attempts to collect rent, the seller hired an attorney to evict the buyers. On February 1, 1998, the buyers vacated the property. The sale never closed escrow.

According to the seller, there was substantial damage to the home and he incurred attorney fees and costs for repairs to the property.

VIOLATIONS: Respondent failed to give adequate disclosure to Crandall of information she possessed regarding the buyers' financial condition and their prior bankruptcy, in violation of A.A.C. R4-28-1101(B) and A.R.S. § 32-2153(A)(3).

DISPOSITION: Respondent to take six hours of continuing education, in addition to hours required for license renewal, in the areas of Fiduciary Duties and Commissioner's Standards.

Legislation

Public Airport statute amended

• House Bill 2523, which has been sent to the Governor for her signature, requires public airports to record maps depicting the "territory in the vicinity of a public airport" with the county recorder. The requirement that these maps are to be provided to the Department and made available to the public will not change. The "territory in the vicinity of a public airport" is defined by A.R.S. § 33-8486 as "property within the traffic pattern airspace as defined by the Federal Aviation Administration [FAA] and includes property that experiences a day-night average sound level of 60 decibels or higher at airports where such an average sound level has been identified."

The legislation raises the sound level to 65 decibels in counties with a population of more than 500,000.

Legislation that didn't make it

Several other bills which would have affected real estate licensees appear to have failed at the time this issue of the Bulletin was published:

• House Bill 2118 would have required licensees to submit continuing education certificates with license renewal applications.

• House Bill 2469 would have permitted the Commissioner to delegate any function under Arizona Revised Statutes, Title 32, Chapter 20, Article 7, to a municipality if he believed the local authority could efficiently perform the function.

• House Bill 2573 would have required the seller of five or fewer parcels of land to provide disclosures of: Whether there is legal access to the property. Whether there is physical access to the property over terrain that can be traversed by a conventional motor vehicle. Whether the county guarantees drainage, flood control, access to water utilities and fire protection.

Whether the property contains dirt roads that the EPA might required to be paved at the owner's expense.

Whether the property is adjacent to State Trust Land and that the State Land Department may sell the land to become private property.

• House Bill 2369 would have permitted a time-share developer to pay a finder's fee of up to $600 to a non-licensed person who owns a time-share.

• Senate Bill 1205 would have required real estate agents to provide, in writing, the name and phone number of a local law enforcement agency to enable the buyer to determine if the property was located in the vicinity of a sex offender. Failure to do so, however, would not have been grounds to terminate a purchase agreement.

• Senate Bill 1229 would have defined a "subdivision" as a land divided into four or more parcels rather than the present six parcels.

• Senate Bill 1373 would have required a seller or a seller's agent, or in the case of a developer, a title company, to disclose to the purchaser of residential property whether an aviation (aviation navigation) easement or written instrument relating to flight over the property exists. Failure to disclose could have voided the purchase agreement.

• Senate Bill 1540 would have defined a "subdivision" as land divided into three or fewer lots, and would have re-defined "acting in concert."

Home inspectors to be licensed

list of names of members of home inspector organizations, and two members of the Board of Technical Registration, one who is an architect or engineer, and one who is a public member.

The statute defines "home inspection" as the "rendering of a professional opinion based on a visual analysis of the building, reasonably accessible installed components and the operation of the building's systems, including heating, cooling, plumbing electrical, structural components, the foundation, roof covering, exterior and interior components, and site aspects as they affect the building."
